Election Contest

City Without Flies

This is a late report, but if you have a chance to see the picture "Wagon Master" at the Rialto theater (it closes tonight, Tuesday) you will find it worthwhile.

John Ford, the director who made "Fort Apache," "She wore a Yellow Ribbon" and "Treasure of the Sierra Madre," has done another tough and realistic film of the Western Mountains. This time it is the tale of a devout band of Mormons braving white robbers and hostile Indians to cross the desert and find peace in a secret valley.

Director Ford is one of America's greatest technicians with a motion picture camera. His mountains are the tallest, his men the most rugged. And he has a sly humor: As witness the scene where the pious Mormon wagon train picks up a stranded medicine show and a dancing girl.

Our trade publication, Editor & Publisher, reports on the ironic plight of Frank K. Tolbert, columnist for the Dallas (Texas) News. For years Tolbert poked fun at the Dallas office of public weigher, a non-essential job which was also non-salaried. Came the November election — and some men-about-town took it upon themselves to write in Tolbert's name on the ticket.

So now Tolbert is the public weigher of Dallas.

But the election is being contested.

Tolbert is contesting it.

I see by the Imperial Type Metal magazine that Editor William Feather has been a Fall visitor to Mexico City, which intrigues him because it is 7,500 feet high (half a mile above Denver), and is never either very cold or very hot.

But when I was down there in March 1940 what impressed me most was that there were no screens on the doors or windows in the capital city. It wasn't due to a lack of sanitation. The fact is, there are no flies in Mexico City.

Well, I did see one in Sanborn's restaurant, on Avenida Juarez. But it was a very small fly — and he couldn't get off the table. A mile and a half up makes life unhealthy for house flies.

Says State Road Program Near Disaster

Little Rock, Nov. 28 — (AP) — The Oil Dealers Association of Arkansas today heard a former state official describe the state's highway construction program as "an approach to financial disaster."

John F. Wells, Little Rock, told the convention that "the 1949 highway bond act and its administration by a too-numerous commission, has set Arkansas highway construction back, instead of advancing it."

At the one day convention, the oil dealers adopted a resolution opposing any increase in the Arkansas gasoline tax and re-elected Chairman A. B. Speights, vice-Chairman F. C. Brown and M. R. Springers and Secretary William F. Scarborough, all of Little Rock.

Wells, an official in the administration of the late Gov. Carl E. Bailey, is publisher of the Arkansas Recorder, a weekly newspaper devoted to state affairs, which has frequently been critical of the highway program.

The 1949 bond was sponsored by Governor McMath as the key to "an $80,000,000 highway construction program," provides for four years of $7,000,000 of new highway bonds. McMath also pushed through the 1949 legislature an act increasing the highway commission from 10 to 12 members.

Wells said that without the bond act, the state could have completed $20,000,000 worth of road construction in 1949, under revenue from the 1941 highway refunding act.

But instead, he said during 1949, $13,000,000 of road construction was put under contract — $6,000,000 for primary roads — and only about $7,000,000 of that projected construction was completed during the year.

The former official said the 1949 bond act provided for $7,000,000 annually for four years through sale of bonds, but also included diversion of $6,500,000 of highway funds a year for the life of the act. He listed the diversions as $2,500,000 for gasoline tax refunds to farmers, $2,000,000 additional turnback to counties and $2,000,000 additional for debt service.

Prospects for Tax This Session Some Brighter

Washington, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Prospects for passage of some kind of a tax bill at this session of congress were looking up today as the house ways and means committee drove head at the tedious job of drafting a bill.

As the tax-framing group stuck to its target of having a bill ready by Friday, house Republican leaders called a strategy meeting to consider what they should do about it.

And Senator George (D-Ga.), chairman of the senate finance committee, announced plans for a meeting of the committee later this week to start work on a tax bill.

While George would make no predictions about what the senate would do, he said yesterday he hoped an excess profits tax bill would be passed "before Christmas."

Earlier indications were that the house would pass a bill only to have it die in a senate pigeonhole.

Both the house and the senate tax committees are under a mandate from congress to try to get an excess profits tax bill ready for consideration during the present session of congress, which goes out of business on Jan. 3 and which probably will adjourn before then.

The administration wants an excess profits tax bill that would raise $4,000,000,000 yearly in new revenue to help meet rising costs of defense. It proposes to tax at a 75 per cent rate all corporate income in excess of 75 per cent of the 1946-1949 average. The first 75 per cent of earnings would be subject to the present maximum corporate income tax of 48 per cent.

The house Republican policy committee, headed by Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, is expected eventually to support a counter-proposal to boost corporate income levies and possibly impose additional excise, or sales, taxes. Business spokesmen have advocated such a substitute.

Martin indicated his committee didn't expect to reach a definite decision on a tax stand at today's session. The group was reported interested primarily in receiving the views of GOP members of the ways and means committee.

The ways and means committee tentatively agreed yesterday to give special consideration to new and growing corporations under a proposed excess profits tax bill.

Arkansas Allotted Over $5 Millions in Highway Aid

Washington, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Arkansas has been allotted $5,885,998 in federal highway aid.

The allocation was part of $400,000,000 announced last night for distribution to all states and territories.

The allotments are made by the public roads bureau on the basis of area, population and road mileage.

The total constituted 80 per cent of the $500,000,000 voted by congress Sept. 7 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1. The federal funds must be used by June 30, 1954.

The remaining $100,000,000 of the congressional appropriation will be allotted when final 1950 census figures become available.

In most instances the federal funds require a dollar for dollar matching by the states.

The Arkansas allotment was divided $2,940,110 for the federal aid highway system; $2,350,527 for secondary or feeder roads, and $595,361 for urban highways (portions of highways passing through cities above 5,000 population.)

Would Hire an Expert to Allot School Funds

Little Rock, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Hiring of an out-of-state expert to devise a new formula for allotting state funds to local school districts has been recommended to the Arkansas Legislative council.

The suggestion was made by a citizens committee and discussed at a council session yesterday. No action was taken.

The council has been considering recommending to the legislature a possible revision of the present "equalizing" method of payment to local districts.

Some members have contended that the method penalizes school districts which try to help themselves and that any allocation should consider steps taken by the individual districts to raise funds at the local level.

The citizens committee was appointed by the council to work on a distribution system designed to reward districts for their financial contribution to the school program.

Nationalists Say Red China Ready for World War

Taipei, Formosa, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Nationalist sources on the mainland today reported new Chinese Communist preparations for World War III on the side of Soviet Russia.

The China Union Press, a small news agency which claims to have four underground correspondents on the mainland, said the Reds are building hangars in the hills near Suchow under Russian supervision.

Suchow is 375 miles northwest of Shanghai. It is at the junction of the Lughai and Tientsin-Pukow railroads.

The agency said facilities were being built for 200 jet fighters and 100 heavy bombers. It reported also that the Chinese Reds had obtained enough spare parts from the Soviet-controlled Manchurian port of Dairen to put 40 LSTs (landing ship, tank) in running order.

The China union press has become one of the main channels of information from the mainland.

Socialists Seek Control in Germany

Munich, Germany, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Bolstered by three straight election victories, the anti-rearmament Socialist party today campaigned for the resignation of the West German federal government.

In a last minute spurt, the Socialists last night nosed out federal Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrats for first place in Sunday's state parliamentary elections in Bavaria.

Complete official tabulations gave the Socialists 2,586,659 votes, the pro-rearmament Christian Democrats 2,520,780. Bavaria's peculiar apportionment system gave the Christian Democrats 64 of the 204 parliamentary seats. The Socialists got 63.

The Socialists, already heartened by similar victories in Hesse and Wurttemberg-Baden, a gain demanded new federal elections to let the German voters say directly whether West Germany should contribute troops to European defense.

The election results "have showed that the government parties no longer have the voters behind them, and on the other hand that the Socialist party does have their support," said Socialist party chairman Kurt Schumacher.

Schumacher laid the defeats of the government parties to their "remilitarization policies."

The results in the three elections generally were interpreted as a vote against West German rearmament. They were a crushing blow to Allied hopes of bringing West Germany into the European defense system.

Adenauer, however, made no mention of rearmament or other federal issues in a statement on the Bavaria poll. He said only that he hoped a "stable" state government could be formed.

Farmers Urged to Report Practices

Farmers of Hempstead county were urged this week to report all of the conservation practices which had been carried out under the 1950 Agricultural Conservation program by Earl Martindale, chairman of the Hempstead county Production and Marketing Administration Committee.

Mr. Martindale pointed out that some farmers reported practices to the PMA representative who checked their farm last summer. However, he said, it will be necessary for the farmer to come to the PMA office and sign his application for payment in order to assure the farmer of proper credit for the practice.

In some cases, he continued, farmers reported seeding practices and other conservation materials used in performing approved practices which require the presentation of sales receipts showing the quantity of the seed or material used.

The chairman pointed out that if seeding practices or other practices where conservation material was purchased to carry out a practice, the farmer must submit sales receipts to the county PMA office covering such material used.

He urged farmers to report all of the conservation practices carried out under the 1950 Agricultural Conservation program, as soon as convenient after all practices have been completed on the farm for this year. In his final statement in discussing 1950 performance reporting the chairman said, "Farmers should report their 1950 conservation practices early and avoid the last minute rush which usually occurs during the latter part of performance reporting season."

Acheson to Brave Questions of Congress

Washington, Nov. 28 — (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson today braved the fire of congressional criticism fanned by Senator Connally's caustic assertion that Republicans aren't going to dictate foreign policies.

Acheson arranged to give the senate foreign relations committee a review of world conditions behind closed doors. He will repeat the review later in the day before the house foreign affairs committee.

Acheson arranged to give the senate foreign relations committee a review of world conditions behind closed doors. He will repeat the review later in the day before the house foreign affairs committee.

Some committee members have suggested Acheson should resign. In advance of Acheson's appearance, Connally, Texas Democrat who is chairman of the senate committee, challenged Republicans who have been demanding a re-examination of foreign policies.

Connally smacked the table with his fist and continued: "They (Republicans) talk about bipartisan and 'we have to consult the Republicans' and we have to do this and that. We have to take them into our confidence and we have to tell them in advance what we are going to do, and then we are going to have to do what they say to do."

"To hell with all that. I am for an American policy. If a man is an American he ought to stand for an American foreign policy. I am not trying to have a Democratic foreign policy or a Republican foreign policy."

Connally's outburst prompted Senator Wiley (R-Wis.), a committee member, to say that he doesn't think "adding any vitriolic fuel to the fire will clear the atmosphere."

FOOD VIOLATORS APPEAL

Little Rock, Nov. 28 — Two Fort Smith packers today asked the Arkansas Supreme court to set aside their Sebastian Circuit court conviction on charges of selling adulterated and misbranded meat.

They are Otto Meyer and Otto Meyer, Jr., who were sentenced to one year imprisonment and fined $500 each.

China Could Possibly Destroy U. N. Forces in Korea But It Probably Would Mean War

By HAL BOYLE
With U. S. Eighth Army, Korea — (AP) — The life of the first army to fight under the United Nations banner is at stake in the chill hills of North Korea.

Equally at stake is the success of the entire five months' effort to unite Korea by arms as a step towards world peace.

This startling turn taken by the Korean war can be summarized by an animal parable:

A terrier has long been fighting a marauding alley cat to keep her from the home he is protecting. One day he chases the cat across the cleared land toward the jungle trees.

As he sniffs the jungle, he sees the cat hisping at him from between the claws of a big tiger. Before he can halt, the tiger flicks out a paw and cripples one of the terrier's legs.

The terrier pauses. Most of the tiger's body lies in the jungle that is the tiger's own domain, but its forepaws stretch out into the clearing that it is the terrier's duty to guard. Between those paws, the alley cat dares him to come on.

The terrier sees no help, but his duty is clear. He must drive both cats, the small one and the large, out of the clearing.

He charges bravely forward. Both cats are ready. They draw back slightly, then lunge at him. The blow breaks one leg of the terrier and sends him reeling back. Again he turns and faces his foe. What next?

The immediate and decisive choice lies with the tiger, which can leap on the terrier and kill him — but to do that the tiger will have to emerge all the way from the jungle, and that might mean that men with torches and clubs would come and beat the tiger to death and burn down the jungle.

The tiger can fade softly back into the jungle and let the wounded terrier chase the alley cat.

However, it is a young tiger, full of pride, and rather likes the idea of having the cat remain in the clearing as a symbol of the tiger's power.

The tiger also has a third choice. It can just stay there on the edge of the jungle and slap down the dauntless terrier every time he advances. This could go on over and over again until the terriers owners decided either to call him off or go all-out to his aid. In soft purrs, the tiger meanwhile insists it is not even in the clearing.

Order to Drop 'Frisco Train' to Be Fought

An Oklahoma Supreme Court decision last week upholding the right of the "Frisco" railway to abandon passenger service between Hugo, Okla., and Hope may be delayed in enforcement for possibly six months, Hope Mayor Lyle Brown said today.

Mayor Brown said he talked this morning with the counsel of the Corporation Commission of Oklahoma, who indicated the commission would probably petition the court to rehear the case — an action which would automatically prevent the railroad from going through with passenger abandonment for six months at least.

Local offices of the "Frisco" said they had received notice that passenger service might be terminated soon, but no date was given — and passenger runs are being made as usual. The road connects Hope with McNab and Ashdown, in Arkansas, and Idabel and Hugo, in Oklahoma.

Mayor Brown recalled that the "Frisco" applied to the Oklahoma Corporation Commission the fall of 1949 for permission to abandon the roundtrip daily passenger schedule. The mayor and Talbot Field, Jr., represented Hope at the commission hearing — and the commission handed down a decision against the railroad company.

The "Frisco" then appealed to the Oklahoma Supreme Court, which last week overruled the commission and decided the railroad had the right to proceed with abandonment. The court specified the railroad could discontinue passenger service, except that which might be served by a caboose on a regular freight run. Freight service is not affected by the controversy.

The railroad claims it lost $25,929 on the Hugo-Hope passenger train in 1947.

'Entire New War' Warns MacArthur as Sino-Red Shove UN Forces Back

Tokyo, Nov. 28 — (AP) — General Douglas MacArthur warned today that the non-Communist United Nations face "an entire new war" with the Red Chinese hordes crushing down on his retreating troops in Korea.

He said also in an extraordinary communique that he lacked authority to cope with the undeclared Chinese belligerents who now build their massive offensives with immunity from Allied air attack in Manchuria.

The commander of troops representing 53 non-Communist nations spoke out at a time of gravest crisis.

His cosmopolitan Eighth army of 110,000 battle-hardened troops was in retreat all along a flaming 75-mile front in northwest Korea.

His hope of ending the war by Christmas was a shattered dream. His hopeful "end-the-war" offensive launched only five days ago had turned into bitter reverses.

MacArthur summoned his two top field commanders, St. Gen. Walton H. Walker and Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond from the battlefronts to Tokyo for emergency conferences.

He urged that the N. N. and all governments seek a solution to the developing crisis of Chinese Communist intervention.

The high commander said Red China had hurled 200,000 troops against U. N. forces in Korea and is throwing more thousands across the border from the "privileged sanctuary" of Manchuria.

Air observer spots said Chinese hordes were swarming like locusts and every ridge line, for 35 miles "along every road, every gully and every ridge line" for 35 miles north of Tokchon.

Their goal obviously was to turn the line and cut off nine Allied divisions including the American 24th, 25th and 1st cavalry.

Other Allied troops in north-central and northeast Korea faced fresh masses of Chinese Red.

Twenty-one Chinese Red divisions — 8,000 to 10,000 men each — were reported officially identified in the 60-mile-wide strip between Allied forces and the Manchurian border.

Other Chinese divisions were known to cross the border.

"This situation, repugnant as it may be, poses issues beyond the authority of the United Nations military council — issues which must find their solution within the councils of the United Nations and the chambers of the world," MacArthur said.

This statement was issued as a final paragraph after his personally signed communique No. 14 was first distributed.

Military observers interpreted MacArthur's statement to mean the Chinese should be stopped by political pressure if possible or else MacArthur should be given authority to strike against the Chinese at their Manchurian bases.

Allied planes are under strict orders not to cross the Yalu river boundary in their attempts to bomb out routes for the Chinese into Korea.

But Soviet-built jet planes sweep across the border in attacks on Allied planes and then swoop back without pursuit to their safe haven in Manchuria. Anti-aircraft fire from the Manchurian side of the border, which Allied warplanes are barred from blasting, has thinned up an additional hazard.

MacArthur said his two senior field commanders back to Tokyo on one hour's notice.

Almond is commander of the U. S. 10th corps fighting in northeast Korea. Walker commanders the U. S. Eighth army in northeast Korea.

MacArthur said heavy Chinese reinforcements once entered in Manchuria are "constantly moving forward." Allied intelligence has estimated that a half million troops are poised there within striking distance of Korea.

Behind them are the vast manpower resources of all China, a nation of nearly a half billion population.

The crisis gravely underscored by MacArthur already was before the United Nations security council at Continued on Page Four

Health Department Wants Funds for Health Certificates

Little Rock, Nov. 28 — (AP) — The state health department wants an extra $45,000 available in case another war brings another heavy demand for birth certificates.

Dr. T. T. Ross, state health officer, said the amount included in the proposed 1951-53 budget, taken up by the legislative council, today would be held in reserve.

He recalled that the outbreak of world war two brought a sudden heavy demand for birth certificates and that the department's vital statistics bureau was swamped. "We were caught without such preparation and stayed months behind in our work," he said.

He said his budget of $676,000 a year from state funds is about $25,000 less than the department's current appropriation. The department will receive an additional $900,000 from the federal government.

South Carolina H-Bomb Site Is Reported

Washington, Nov. 28 — A congressional source said today the atomic energy commission and the E. I. DuPont company have selected South Carolina as the site for the hydrogen bomb plant.

This informant, asking not to be named, said the location chosen is in Aiken and Barnwell counties about 15 miles from the town of Aiken, S. C., and about 20 miles from Augusta, Ga.

It is adjacent of the Savannah river and there are about 250,000 acres of land in the site.

The DuPont company had a hand in the decision because it was chosen as contractor for the plant. DuPont sets up the Hanford, Wash., plant to produce plutonium used in making the atomic bomb, but withdrew from its operation after the war.

Although the AEC has said it planned a substantial expansion of its facilities, it has never said officially that the work would be in connection with producing H-bombs which scientists figure might be 1,000 times as powerful as the A-bomb.

However, Senator McMahon (D-Conn.), chairman of the congressional atomic energy committee, has intimated that was a prime purpose.

The South Carolina plant, although keyed to the H-bomb project, will not actually produce the bombs — assuming the project is successful. Rather, it will provide materials from which the H-bomb can be put together elsewhere.

An AEC source described these materials as useful either for weapons or peace.

The congressional source said the South Carolina installation would consist of a number of different plants and would cost $260,000,000.

This informant estimated that more than 1,500 families would have to move from the area during the next 18 months.

Towns affected include Jackson, Ellenton, Dunbarton and Senling in South Carolina, but there was no immediate word as to whether all their residents would have to move.

There are several main reasons why the government needs such a whopping big area — some 250,000 acres — for this project.

1. Military and security considerations. Obviously, there must be enough room to allow dispersal of key structures, so as not to furnish a bunched target for enemy attack. Also, a large area allows isolation of the plant site from the "outside world" — thus lessening danger from saboteurs and spies.

2. Safety and public health considerations. The workers will be dealing with dangerous radioactive materials.

Also, there must be sufficient room for the disposal or safe storage of various dangerous radioactive wastes produced in an atomic energy process.

3. The operating requirements of the plant facilities themselves require considerable room — that is, the plants themselves are big.

As for the materials to be produced, a reasonable guess is that the AEC will make "tritium" — one form of hydrogen — at this new plant. Tritium is a possible ingredient of a hydrogen bomb, and some top scientists have speculated that both tritium and deuterium — another form of hydrogen — will be employed in the proposed bomb.

U. S. Charges Chinese Reds With Aggression

Washington, Nov. 28 — (AP) — United States Secretary of State George Marshall today charged Communist China with aggression in Korea.

Assistant Secretary of State D. Hickerson so advised the "end-the-war" delegation at New York today by telephone.

Hickerson telephoned Ambassador Warren R. Austin before today's U. N. security council meeting at New York, considered possible here that the United States would make the charge publicly almost immediately.

This is a step which the government has heretofore refrained from taking on the charge that Chinese aggression might set in action a tremendously serious chain of events since once an aggressor is belied there is strong pressure against him.

Hickerson instructed Austin press for immediate adoption of the United Nations' resolution on U. N. resolution which would:

(1) Call on the Chinese to get their troops out of Korea.

(2) Assure them the United Nations seeks only peace and independence.

Michael J. McDermott, assistant press officer, said the statement was the first time the Chinese troops in Korea were charged with aggression.

"The United Nations will take immediate action on the resolution before security," McDermott said.

Party May Go Along on Rent Control Bill

Washington, Nov. 28 (P)— Democrats indicated a willingness today to go along, even if reluctantly, with President Truman's request for a temporary extension of federal rent controls. Republican opponents showed more resistance.

The senate banking committee called a closed door session to decide what to do about Mr. Truman's request that the rent law be continued for 90 days beyond Dec. 31.

Senator Maybank (D-SC) the committee chairman, told reporters he "would not oppose" a stop-gap extension. "I am going to leave it up to the committee," he said.

In letters to Maybank and Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the house banking committee, Mr. Truman asked an extension bill from the short session which started yesterday.

Spence promptly introduced a resolution to continue federal rent ceilings until March 31. His committee may begin hearings on it tomorrow.

Under the present law, federal controls will expire Dec. 31 except in communities which vote to extend them for another six months.

In asking for a 90 day extension, Mr. Truman noted that the present law was passed before the outbreak of the Korean war.

"We are stepping up our production of defense items and increasing our industrial capacity," he wrote. "To carry out this program successfully and to safeguard our economy, it will be necessary to keep rents in vital defense areas from rising to unreasonable levels."

A continuation of the present law until March 31, Mr. Truman said, would give the new congress meeting in January time to determine what kind of permanent legislation was necessary.

Development of South Is Topic of Governors

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 28 (P)— "Industrial development of the south" was the discussion topic at the Southern Governors' conference here today.

Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi was the discussion leader.

Last night, at a formal state dinner, the governors heard Gen. Lucius D. Clay call for "a bipartisan policy for national security as for a foreign policy, and for the honest differences of opinion which come about to concern only the execution of this policy."

Clay, New York state civil defense director, is the former American commander of occupied Germany.

Earlier yesterday, the governors approved a three-fold program in post-graduate work proposed by the southern regional education board of control.

The plan enlarges upon the regional education program launched two years ago for professional study in medicine, dentistry, nursing and veterinary medicine. It was described as "the second major step" in the regional education scheme pioneered by 13 of the 15 states belonging to the conference.

FRANK R. ADAMS

THE STORY: Before he was killed, along with Sergeant Smith and other members of his squad, in battle, Pvt. Carl Peterson had learned that his wife had been unfaithful. Now, after death, Carl and members of his squad still carry at his unfaithful wife.

VIII
CARL got up and looked over his shoulder. In the drawers were a great many letters apparently all from himself. The ones on top were V-mail microfilm single sheets which he had sent from various overseas stations.

Kirsten scooped out the letters. All of them, and carried them into the living room. Carl followed her just in time to see her dump the lot into the fireplace.

"Kirsten!" Carl protested from the depths of a wounded heart. "Don't you want to keep any of them?"

She hesitated, almost as if she had heard him, and bent over as if to take them back, but straightened up again resolutely with a gesture that put them and their writer out of her life forever. Her back was toward him so he did not see the expression on his wife's face as she fumbled for the box of matches which lay on the mantel.

When she found it she stooped down once more and lit the papers. She remembered one more thing and went to get it. Carl, through the bedroom door, saw her take an envelope from the right hip-pocket of her overalls. She brought it back to the fireplace but before burning it she extricated the note which it contained and read it through.

So did Carl. It was not in his handwriting, and he had to know, "Listen, sister," it read, "just because I got introduced kind of rough it ain't no reason why we shouldn't never have any more fun. After all what are we living for? I admit I was higher than placed rugs in front of the front and back doors and went out to the gas stove in the kitchen. She turned on all the burners, oven, broiler and everything. After that Kirsten began to dress herself carefully in the nicest clothes she owned—that last pair of nylons, the silken lingerie that she had been married in. She took a great deal of care in the selection of her apparel just as if she had all the time there was.

PRIVATE PETERSON was not at first aware of any reason why he should next have found himself back on the Lake Michigan beach with the rest of his squad.

The men were gathered in a ragged group around a focus of activity, which seemed to be on the sand.

"What goes on?" Carl asked as he edged his way in.

"It's that girl," explained Jake Snyder. "She almost got drowned. Then this big guy come along and he's undrowning her."

Carl was near enough now to observe the workings of the resuscitation treatment. He was interested but not particularly until the man happened to turn his head to look over his shoulder as he spoke to Duke.

Then Carl knew instantly why he was there. The man was Max! The only person in all the world, even in Tokyo, whom Carl really hated.

Carl started toward Max. "Stand up, you son of a bitch! You and you can guess what I'm going to do to you."

Carl had counted without Eddie. Eddie blocked him off. Eddie was a good blocker, a lot of man and muscle. "Let him alone."

"But, Eddie," argued Carl, "this is the house who—"

"Never mind who he is. Right now let him be. You heard me?"

Maybe Carl heard him but he certainly paid no attention. The moment Eddie's grip relaxed Carl lunged forward.

Eddie had to shove him out of the way this time. A good hard shove. It put Carl back on his rump—seated there in the sand with a resounding thump.

would just about break his heart to learn the truth, so I don't know whether to tell him or not. He is bound to find out after we are married and might think me deceitful in other matters if he learns of it himself. Shall I tell him or not?

BRIDE-TO-BE
Answer: A very famous man once said to me that his idea of a highly intelligent and subtle woman was one who could be married to a man for twenty years without her hair was her own or not.

There is a tip in that speech for you. It is to keep silent and keep your hair dyed. If you have been engaged to a man for six months and he hasn't found out that you owe your lovely blonde hair to the drug store instead of nature, I see no reason why he should ever be any wiser as long as the peroxide holds out.

Anyway, a woman's looks are her own business and she is not bound to reveal her secret of how she gets them to anyone. Least of all to her husband. All that concerns him is the result. However your boy friend is probably not as unsuspecting and deceived as you think he is. He has doubtless known all about your touching up of your locks ever since the first time he kissed the top of your head and saw the little brown line at the roots.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a young business woman in my thirties. For eight hours of every day I mix with all sorts and types of people and when I come home after a grueling day I want to be quiet. This early runs my family frantic. They think I should want to go out to have dates, to go to places of amusement. I hate to worry them yet when I want such innocent things as rest and quiet, why can't I have them?

A WORKING GIRL
Answer: I don't know. It is just the way of the world. People always think anyone who doesn't like to do the things they like to do eccentric, and this goes double for families, especially when dealing with girls.

When mothers complain of being disappointed in their daughters it isn't that the daughters have done anything wrong. It is just the old 'bea has hatched out a

DOROTHY DIX That First Year

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married a year. Sometimes I think I love him. Other times I regret that I married him and wish that was single again. He has a queer disposition, becomes moody and peevish when things don't go exactly to suit him. It is almost unbelievable how upset he gets over a little incident that anyone else would pass over without a thought. Somehow I can't make myself cater to his moods and try to make him snap out of them. He is very intelligent and has a position with a promising future. I work in an office. We have a nicely furnished apartment. But there seems to be something lacking, compatibility and understanding. Or perhaps it is real love. What shall I do?

Answer: Your case is not unusual. Along toward the end of the first year of marriage most young husbands and wives go through a reaction that makes them regret their marriages and wish they were single again. The honeymoon has set. The novelty of being together and in their own home has worn off and they begin to figure on whether marriage is worth all it costs and to look at their lost freedom with longing and to wish that if they really cared to know about those they are tied to stand them and their faults and little ways for a lifetime. Divorce Too Expensive

If divorces grew on trees and were to be had for the taking, there wouldn't be many second wedding anniversaries celebrated, but luckily they do not. Most divorces are expensive and messy luxuries in which only the rich can indulge freely. So, more or less, the married have to stick it. Also, pride comes to their aid and a sense of duty and obligation and good sportsmanship. So after a few quarrels over nothing and a few tears, most brides and grooms get their second winds and settle down to making a go of their marriages.

And the reward is generally in finding out that if their romantic love has flown out the window, an affection far deeper and more satisfying has taken its place and they are not out of love after all, but really in love for the first time, and they are not sorry they are married, they are glad of it.

Every woman who makes a success of her marriage has to manufacture the sunshine of her home and she has to get along with her husband by dealing with his disposition "as is" and not as it should be. You and your husband have youth, love, intelligence, a good start in the world, all the raw materials for making a happy and prosperous marriage, but

Porters Capture Cross-County Championship

College Station, Tex., Nov. 28 — (P) — Arkansas won the Southwest conference cross-county championship here yesterday with the Razorbacks' James Brown and James West finishing first and second.

The host team, Texas A. and M. winner for the past two years, placed second. Texas was third.

Brown and West finished the 2.5-mile course in 12:01 and 12:08, respectively. Arkansas had five men among the first seven across the finish line.

SW Loop Play Ends This Weekend

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 28 — (P) — The University of Texas and Texas A. & M. wind up preparations for their traditional tangle at Austin Thursday with practically no injury lists.

Other Southwest conference teams appear in good physical shape for their games Saturday.

The Longhorns, already Southwest conference champions, ran through a brisk dummy scrimmage yesterday but there was little contact work as coaches took extra precautions against injuries.

The only Longhorn not fit for duty is John Alfred, reserve end, who twisted an elbow Friday in a rough scrimmage.

Coach Blair Cherry was absent yesterday with a light cold picked up while scouting the Tennessee-Kentucky game last Saturday which was played in a snowbound atmosphere.

On the other hand, Aggie Coach Harry Stiteler chanced pregame injuries yesterday with a hard workout. Another lively — but secret — session is scheduled today with a light warmup tomorrow.

Texas Christian went through a short workout yesterday in preparation for the game with Southern Methodist Saturday.

Coach Dutch Meyer stopped the hurdling career of Bobby "Jumping" Jack Floyd, who jumped over Rice Owls four times in last Saturday's games. There was some question of legality on two of the leaps.

Meyer pointed out that it's a 15-yard penalty if an official decides the ball carrier's feet preceded his head in jumping over a tackler.

Southern Methodist reported in near top shape, physically speaking, after the 3-0 loss to Baylor.

Four players, all injured before the Baylor game, missed practice yesterday. They were Backs Bill Richards and Henry Stollenwerk, and Linemen Bobby Collier and Hal Quinn.

The Baylor Bears looked over movies of the SMU upset and heard

Oklahoma Still Top Team in National Poll

New York, Nov. 28 — (P) — The University of Oklahoma today gained the nation's most coveted college football distinction — No. 1 position in the final weekly Associated Press poll — and by an overwhelming majority.

Of the 319 sports writers and sportscasters who voted, 213 placed the Sooners first. The result gave Bud Wilkinson's team, winner of 30 straight games, 2,963 points.

Only Army, in second place, came close to the Sugar Bowl-bound Oklahoma. The Cadets, undefeated through 28 games, received 38 first-place votes for 2,380 points. Ten points are given for a first-place vote, nine for second, and so on.

Then came: 3-Texas; 4-Tennessee; 5-California; 6-Princeton; 7-Kentucky; 8-Michigan State; 9-Michigan State; 9-Michigan State; 10-Clemson.

In an Associated Press pre-season poll, Oklahoma was picked to finish sixth, by the nation's experts. Nine straight victories and another Big Seven championship changed their minds, however.

Notre Dame, No. 1 in three of the four previous years, was selected almost unanimously to finish on top. The Irish, however, had lost three games and tying one. As a result, they failed to finish among the first 29 teams.

Oklahoma, which seeks its third straight Sugar Bowl triumph on New Year's Day, has one game left, with Oklahoma A&M Saturday at Stillwater. The Aggies have lost five games while winning only four this year. Kentucky will oppose Oklahoma in the New Orleans classic.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Nov. 28 — (P) — Just about two years ago Walter Charles of Grand Island, Neb., sent word to this dept. to keep an eye on "another Glenn Davis" who had turned up at Grand Island high school. . . . His name was Bob Reynolds. . . . Always willing to take a hint, we relayed that information to the readers. . . . You've been hearing a lot more about Bob and if the kid doesn't make the All-America after last Saturday's performance against Oklahoma the selectors are going to look mighty silly. . . . Besides racking up three touchdowns in a losing cause, Bob pulled what Bud Wilkinson called the smartest play of the game. . . . Rushed on an attempt to punt, Reynolds ran wide around right end on the run 54 yards over the head of the Oklahoma safety man who had come up to tackle him. . . . After the game, Reynolds entered the Oklahoma dressing room and asked: "Where's Buddy Jones? I want to meet him. He was terrific out there today." . . . Jones, Oklahoma's 155-pound safety man, tackled Reynolds six times. . . . P. S. Walter Charlesworth is a Detroit Tiger scout. If he can tab baseball players the way he can footballers look for a pennant over Briggs stadium soon.

Muted Drums

McMurry college of Abilene, Tex., which opens its basketball season against St. Edwards tonight, held a hush-hush workout behind locked doors recently. . . . Coach Mel Jowell, hoping to improve on last year's 2-22 record, thought it was a good idea to learn about his team before the fans did. . . . But he forgot to bar the dressing-room door and ruefully reported: "More fans sneaked in than we often had in the stands last season." . . . And that statement brought a shocking thought to drummer Bill Holmes: "Maybe a whispering campaign beats publicity in drawing a crowd."

Looks like a cinch that Chuck Dessen will be named manager of the Dodgers today. . . . And the iron curtain protecting information about that ball club is as leaky as the Bums' infield was in Uncle Robbie's day. . . . Penn's Red Bucknell will get a late start on the basketball season because he has accepted a bid to play in the North-South game at Miami. . . . And Kyle Rote looks like a good prospect for stardom in San Francisco's East-West game. . . . Bill Dechard, Holy Cross line-backer and defensive captain, has a sports program every Monday on the campus radio station. He's probably the only footballer who gets a chance to second-guess himself in public. . . . In spite of rumors you may have heard, word from Green Bay is that the Packers are keeping their books with blank ink this season.

Dots All, Brothers

Southern report says candidates for the head coaching job at Virginia Tech outnumber the players seeking scholarships. . . . One of the latest to apply is Clemson backfield Coach Covington "Goat" McMillan — who has the perfect nickname for a head coach. . . . The Marte Soccer club of Mexico City announced the other day it was cutting its players salaries in half until they started playing better. . . . Next thing you know they'll be jumping o the American league.

Benefit Game Scheduled for 8 Tonight

The annual benefit football game between the Lions and the Kiwanis clubs of Hope will be played tonight at 8 in the high school stadium. The game was originally scheduled for last week but postponed because of bad weather.

Each team has a full squad of former football stars and in the past the games have been bruisers with all they could want in a grid game.

Proceeds will be divided between the two clubs. The Kiwanians will use their part to help finance the youth center and Lions will buy eyeglasses for needy persons in Hempstead.

hearing what are generally considered here to be trumped-up charges of American aggression. Council President Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia ruled that the group would decide the speaking order.

The Russian also was overruled on his plea that only alleged American aggression against Formosa — without inclusion of the Korean question — be debated.

Bebler said Malik "wants to put difficulties in the way of a hearing for that delegation which we have invited here. This follows the theme, first promulgated by the British, that the Russians only pretend to want a hearing for the Chinese Reds, but fear they might lose their control of Peiping if the Chinese Reds, but fear they might lose their control of Peiping if the Chinese are thoroughly exposed to the U. N.

Bebler's remark was part of what appears to be a concerted campaign on the part of the West to split Peiping and Moscow.

Austin's speech — besides blasting Chinese military intervention in Korea which battlefront reports say is becoming more and more serious — is expected to continue that idea.

"U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin came up with a bitter denunciation of Chinese intervention in Korea. A Red Chinese delegation was on hand to press its own charges of American aggression in Formosa, last stronghold of Nationalist China.

MacArthur said the strength of Chinese Red forces in Korea "has shattered the high hope we had that the intervention... was only of a token nature on a volunteer and individual basis as publicly announced."

Eighth army intelligence had identified 14 Chinese Communist divisions along the northwest Korea front. New Chinese Red divisions have swelled the number in the past 24 hours, AP Correspondent Erickson reported from Eighth army headquarters.

A Chinese division has 8,000 to 10,000 men.

MacArthur said the vast outpouring of Chinese Red troops also had shattered his own hopes that the Korean war could be ended quickly.
